

Aromathérapie en Parodontie

By Leila Lakhdar

Editions Universitaires Europeennes EUE Aug 2016, 2016. Taschenbuch. Book Condition: Neu. 220x150x14 mm. This item is printed on demand - Print on Demand Neuware - En parodontie, le traitement vise essentiellement l'élimination du biofilm bactérien, qui adhère aux dents et qui représente l'agent étiologique principal des maladies parodontales affectant les tissus de soutien de la dent (gencive, ligament parodontal, cément et os alvéolaire). Ce biofilm peut contenir des espèces virulentes nécessitant l'utilisation d'agents antimicrobiens adjuvants. Cependant, aujourd'hui, il existe suffisamment de preuves scientifiques quant à l'existence d'une résistance accrue et croissante des bactéries orales aux antibiotiques. De ce fait, la recherche de nouveaux agents d'origine naturelle, présentant moins de danger pour la santé et palliant aux effets secondaires des antibiotiques, tels: ' les huiles essentielles ', est devenue une nécessité. Etant donné que le Maroc figure parmi les principaux pays producteurs d'huiles essentielles, notre présente étude de recherche s'est proposée de tester l'activité antibactérienne d'huiles essentielles d'origine Marocaine sur Aggregatibacter actinomycetemcomitans (Aa) (sérotypé b), bactérie orale connue virulente et incriminée dans les parodontites agressives, réel problème de santé publique au Maroc. 228 pp. Französisch.
